Letter from the Director
On behalf of the Board and staff, I am pleased to present this aspirational vision for the future of Bartholomew County Public Library (BCPL) to our community. This strategic plan positions BCPL as a trusted leader to responsibly use the library’s assets and the county’s vast network of resources to support all community members in their pursuit of a meaningful life.

As a critical anchor of Bartholomew County’s civic infrastructure, you will continue to see BCPL showing up in all areas of the community with intentionality. We remain the community’s trusted partner, providing access to programs, services, and collections that all enjoy. Looking forward, we are pledging to use our unique strengths as a community connector to advance and amplify resources to further opportunity for all who call Bartholomew County home.

Co-created with community partners and library staff, this plan accomplishes two things. First, it reorients our existing library services toward social impact. Second, it positions BCPL to connect community partners to amplify the great work that we all do to reach the community members who need our services the most. In this role of building partnerships in service of the public good, BCPL will be at the forefront of the new era of librarianship, one that activates the library as an essential element of civic and social infrastructure.

The library plays a unique role in our community. We are a “neutral” institution that by its very nature is open and welcoming to all. As an organization, we see everyone as a person of potential. I am proud that this strategic plan enables BCPL to be an active and unwavering partner in developing an inclusive community.

We will honor our communities by creating community connections through:

- Fostering inclusion and belonging;
- Promoting health and well being;
- Developing critical literacies;
- Providing educational and school support;
- Celebrating history and architecture; and
- Supporting the economic engine.

These commitments aren’t new, but they are fresh, focused, and fueled by passionate staff who we will support in every way possible to do their important work. Thank you to our amazing partners and staff who contributed their creativity to this process. Thank you in advance to the many more people who will continue to be partners in this invigorating future. We are a stronger county when we work together, and the kindness within and our shared passion for this special place will generate a vibrant, welcoming community where all of our stories are celebrated.

Jason Hatton
Library Director
Introduction

Margaret Sullivan Studio engaged in a year-long strategic plan project with Bartholomew County Public Library. The consultants engaged with a team of the library's leadership and staff to facilitate a series of highly participatory community engagement sessions and focus groups that invited a diverse cross section of community leaders, organizations, and individual stakeholders. As part of this process, a thorough review of library statistics, demographic data, and growth forecasts was completed to ground future strategies in the context of today's reality.

The purpose of the work was to develop a flexible strategic framework and county-wide facilities strategy for a contemporary 21st-century library system that will flourish along with its community of users. This process employed service design techniques, which enabled the staff to generate a meaningful future vision for BCPL and develop skills for ongoing transformation and relevancy.
Evaluation

Regular and ongoing evaluation of this strategic plan is crucial to success. The Patron Services, Collections, Programming, and Outreach teams bring together staff serving in the various departments of the library. Each team will work to implement and evaluate aspects of the strategic plan that coincide with its specific areas. The director will work closely with these teams, the management team, and other staff to monitor progress and adjust services, programs, and resources as necessary.

Outcomes and success will be gauged and evaluated based on data collected through surveys, program attendance, circulation numbers, database usage, and the like.

Financial Resources and Sustainability
As a local government entity, the library’s main source of revenue is derived from property and local income taxes. In 2010, property tax caps which limit the amount of tax paid were put in the Indiana Constitution. While this is great for the taxpayers’ wallet, it has put a strain on the abilities of local governmental units to conduct business. Thankfully, Bartholomew County is a growing area and assessed valuation continues to increase thus reducing the effect of property tax caps on BCPL’s budget.

However, rising costs continue to push against the library’s annual operating budget. Every line item continues to see increases from inflation and growth of general costs. For example, digital resources are much more expensive than print resources. To meet the community needs, BCPL must purchase titles in a multitude of formats. The library strives every day to be intentional about the dollars spent and to be as efficient as possible with its resources.

Capital funds are also an issue. Large capital expenses in recent years have reduced our LIRF (Library Improvement Reserve Fund) to its lowest level in many years. Due to rising operating costs, BCPL has not been able to replenish LIRF as desired. The needed maintenance and renovation costs will need to be carefully considered and most likely staged in order to have enough funds. As part of the implementation of this plan, BCPL will need to look at other sources such as fundraisers, gifts, grants, and issuing debt.

Collaboration
BCPL understands that it cannot achieve its greatest impact alone. It requires partnerships and collaboration with the many wonderful agencies and organizations in our community. The library will continue to forge new partnerships at every opportunity. The library’s partners... include, Bartholomew Consolidated School Corporation, Flat Rock-Hawcreek School Corporation, Columbus Area Arts Council, United Way of Bartholomew County, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, Columbus Area Visitors Center, Columbus Indiana Parks & Rec, Bartholomew County Historical Society, Early Learning Coalition, Ecumenical Assembly of Bartholomew County Churches, Thrive Alliance, Yellow Trail Museum, Landmark Columbus Foundation, and area preschools. Staff are also encouraged to sit on boards and participate in community activities that help further the library’s mission.

BCPL also believes strongly in networking and learning from other public libraries around the state and country. Staff members regularly participate in roundtables and other opportunities for formal and informal networking. Staff are active in the Indiana Library Federation through its boards, committees, and conferences.

Professional Development Strategy

The library’s staff is its greatest asset. BCPL recognizes this through many opportunities for professional development. Along with the statewide networking and professional activities, BCPL sends many staff to several national and regional conferences. Staff have attended Public Library Association (PLA), Back-in-Circulation, Young Adult Library Services Association (YALSA), Sirsi-Dynix User group (COSUGI) conferences and many others.

The library values life-long learning and education for its staff in addition to patrons. BCPL reimburses staff for taking library science courses to acquire certification necessary for their positions. BCPL is fortunate to have an endowed gift fund (Frances Carr Memorial Fund) and a line item in its operating budget for some of these professional development opportunities.

Staff training is a high priority. Through staff in-service days and other sessions throughout the year, the library provides training on readers’ advisory, technology, diversity, equity, and inclusion, and much more.

Equipment Retention Schedule

The library aims to refresh all computers, printers and copiers, and network equipment every five years. However, emerging technologies may cause the library to purchase additional or replacement equipment sooner. All other items will be replaced on an as needed basis.
Methodology

Bartholomew County Public Library employed a comprehensive discovery, engagement, and planning process that focused on community co-creation and collective impact to develop a plan for current and future capital projects.

A New Approach to Strategic Work
By recognizing the need for a new strategic plan to effectively address the evolving needs of Bartholomew County, Bartholomew County Public Library sought to evaluate its existing strengths and opportunities for evolution. Collaborating with Margaret Sullivan Studio, the library gathered community and stakeholder input to support its transformation into a more community-centric institution. This involved a collaborative engagement process that utilized human-centered design methodologies, community economic development practices, collective impact principles, and social impact assessment methods. As a result of this method, the library’s aim to serve as a crossroads, connector, and catalyst for driving solutions to address community challenges emerged. Emphasizing an asset-based perspective, the library will focus on the strengths of the community and individuals, aiming to understand what motivates and drives each resident. By acting with intentionality and expediency, Bartholomew County Public Library will serve as a lifelong partner, providing resources, expertise, and connections to support residents on their journey toward purpose, happiness, and accomplishment.
Why We Do This Work

Libraries Must Meet the Demands of a Growing Community

The increasing population and community needs emphasize the importance of expanding library facilities to provide adequate space for the community to learn, play, study, and grow. According to data from the U.S. Census Bureau, Bartholomew County experienced a modest increase in population during the pandemic. BCPL’s approximate 104,700 total square feet of public space serves a population of about 81,845 Bartholomew County residents. Currently, the library operates two locations as well as mobile services and outreach programs that circulate a diverse range of materials and serve a significant number of library cardholders annually. However, the library facilities have fallen short of meeting the growing demands of the community. Challenges hindering BCPL’s ability to fully support their evolving community needs and aspirations include their ratio of building size to community served and the inability to upgrade technology due to facilities infrastructure and building materials.

A Growing County Facing Inequality and Poverty

ALICE (Asset-Limited, Income-Constrained, Employed) is an assessment tool created by the United Way to understand and advocate for the urgent needs of those whose earnings are above the federal poverty level (FPL) but less than what a specific community’s cost of living requires. The populations that fit this criteria are critical to the service economy of any community and are uniquely positioned to benefit the most from the library’s ability to provide essential resources to stabilize quality of life essentials.

Based on online data, it has been observed that as the county experiences growth, the wealth gap widens. The population living in certain communities within Bartholomew County, including East Columbus and Taylorsville, faces more economic challenges compared to others. Several community challenges were identified through discussions between library staff and community-based organization leaders. These include limited access to affordable housing, an uneven distribution of poverty within the community, challenges related to community integration for newcomers, restricted access to books, and increasing concerns about mental health support systems for both youth and adults.

How We Do This Work

Community Strengths and Assets
Columbus boasts a remarkable collection of buildings designed by world-renowned architects. However, although every corner of Columbus reveals a masterpiece of design and innovation, the county is not without its needs and challenges. Analyzing the geographical distribution of amenities and economic resources, the community’s collective strengths and particular needs have been identified. This, in turn, allows the library to envision where and who it might improve and/or expand its services to better serve the community.

Community Collectives
As a convener, connector, and liaison between the partners and residents of Bartholomew County, BCPL is in an extraordinary position to catalyze collective impact and economic opportunity. The library has meaningful connections and provides services throughout the county, its foundational role in generating community trust and collaboration is one of the library’s strengths. BCPL enjoys powerful county-wide partnerships with Bartholomew County government, private enterprises, and community influencers. During community stakeholder workshops, community partners and the library were excited about the opportunity to reimagine their potential strategic partnerships to expand reach, innovation, and impact.

Placemaking for Social Impact
Libraries play a significant role in various aspects of social impact. Placemaking, which involves creating spaces that are not only functional but also serve as catalysts for community engagement, social connections, and community transformation, is essential to shape the social fabric of the community. By designing welcoming, inclusive, and vibrant spaces, the library strives to foster a sense of belonging and provide opportunities for individuals to connect, learn, and grow.

Through placemaking initiatives, the library aims to create an environment where community members can come together, share ideas, collaborate on projects, and actively participate in shaping the future of the community. BCPL’s commitment to placemaking for social impact reflects its belief in the transformative power of libraries as dynamic community spaces that go beyond the traditional role of information provision to serve as hubs for inspiration, connection, and positive social change.
Needs & Opportunities of the Library

The Bartholomew County Public Library is at a pivotal juncture, marked by a series of pressing needs and promising opportunities. It’s evident that the current library facilities are falling short of effectively serving the community’s needs. The constraints of limited space are stifling the library’s growth and, consequently, its potential impact for the community. With the county experiencing significant demographic shifts and rapid socioeconomic changes, there is a clear call to provide access to educational opportunities that can adapt to this evolving landscape.

To fulfill its mission more comprehensively, the library must take bold steps to connect with the entire county through outreach services and partnerships, thereby bridging gaps in income and service accessibility.
According to the most recent data from the 2019 Community Needs Assessment that considered community disparities across income, access, healthcare, food insecurity, mental health and more, there is still a substantial demand for increased support in the suburban areas and neighborhoods experiencing limited access to resources.¹

BCPL’S Outreach Department works diligently to connect with the community through initiatives such as the Bookmobile, BCPL Express, and outreach programs. However, with increased demand the library struggles to ensure that resources are distributed equitably.

The library continues to tackle these disparities and is working hard to promote a more equitable and inclusive community.

- Over 10,000 households struggle to meet their most basic needs.
- Over 3,000 children suffer from food insecurity.
- Nearly 700 households do not have a vehicle.
- 10.7% of Bartholomew County residents lack proper access to healthcare.
- 19 out of the 25 most common jobs do not earn enough to support a single working parent with one child.
- 63.7% of the Hispanic population is below the ALICE Threshold, which is nearly double the amount of the White and Black populations.

The data suggests there is a need to concentrate resources and social service support in East Columbus.

These maps illustrate the challenges facing the East Columbus community. The composite index for health and well-being, as well as income above the poverty line, is relatively low in metropolitan areas within Columbus. By tracing back household income based on where children grew up, the data shows individuals who grew up in East Columbus have significantly lower incomes compared to those who grew up in other areas of Columbus. There is a substantial gap that needs to be filled to provide the necessary resources and services to support all residents equitably.

The data suggests there is a need to provide educational and whole-family support in Taylorsville and North Columbus.\textsuperscript{5}

Creating community connections is Bartholomew County Public Library’s core initiative, and the key to successfully addressing each of its strategic areas of focus. Just as BCPL plays a critical role in connecting people to ideas, information, and services, it relies on community connections - with both people and organizations - to carry out the work of promoting health and well-being, developing critical literacies, fostering inclusion and belonging, and each of its other areas of focus. BCPL’s dedication to this core initiative aims to promote inclusivity, coalition building, and overall togetherness within the community.
Fostering Inclusion & Belonging

Partner Activation Strategy

One of the key strategies to achieve the outcome goals outlined in this plan will be to work more intentionally with Bartholomew County’s vast network of community service providers. As a leader and catalyst of the future collective impact model, BCPL will generate value to residents by amplifying the impact of Bartholomew County’s robust community-based network of services and break down silos through strategic partnerships, shared outcome goals, and service distribution—maximizing utilization of the library buildings, mobile services, and outreach programming. By strategically connecting with existing community resources, place-based programming, and the talented workforce of community partners, BCPL can help all institutions connect critical resources to community members more efficiently and effectively.

At the February 2023 Community Partner Lunch, community partners generated impact statements they could imagine accomplishing with the library. During the next phase of this work, BCPL will use these examples as the basis to develop strategic relationships and shared outcome goals.
Next Steps

1. Orient Services toward Strategic Areas of Focus
In the near future, you will see library staff building out work plans, incorporating programs, collections, and technology strategies that deepen the goals, objectives, and tactics of the strategic focus areas.

2. Strengthen Strategic Partnerships
In the near future, you will see the library listening, learning, and engaging with partners in the county in meaningful ways that enable the impact of our collective work to reach a larger community.

3. Expand Placemaking for Social Impact
In the near future you will see the library embracing its role to deliver joyful, playful, and meaningful experiences through programs in our buildings, with partners, and through outreach services.

4. Implement County-Wide Facilities Strategy
In the near future, you will see the library continuing to plan an ambitious expansion to ensure that all residents are enjoying high-quality services, that learning needs are being met, and that BCPL is a leader in providing the places, tools, resources, and expertise for inclusive placemaking experiences.
Conclusion

The library, as a public institution, exists for a singular purpose: the benefit of people. More specifically, the Bartholomew County Public Library exists to serve the residents of Bartholomew County. BCPL is, by design, people-centered. So too was the strategic plan process undertaken by library staff and leadership. The process demanded conversation, reflection, and collaboration, not just within BCPL, but with community partners and stakeholders, on the nature of the library’s work and how it relates to the broader needs of the community. In doing this work, library staff honed their mission, vision, and values; developed strategic areas of focus; and, most importantly, came to a shared understanding of their role as a trusted institution within the community. It is the hope of library staff and leadership that going forward these will be used to both frame their day-to-day work and to guide their decision-making, for the benefit of the people of Bartholomew County.
