Ohio Libraries At Risk

Thank you for standing up for your library.

When we asked, you and thousands of people across Ohio sent emails, letters, and made phone calls to our state legislators to support quality library funding. In response, our legislators did not restore the Public Library Fund (PLF). Instead, the House passed their own budget, which still eliminates the PLF and moves public library funding to a yearly appropriation. An appropriation is a far more vulnerable funding mechanism that can easily be eliminated in a single budget—unlike the Public Library Fund, which is written into Ohio law.

This piece of law about the PLF states that libraries will be funded with a percentage of Ohio’s annual revenue. This percentage might increase or decrease each year when state revenue fluctuates. In fact, in 2024, libraries received the same dollar amount as in 2000 because revenue was down. Despite the fluctuations, this method of library funding works. Ohio has used the PLF method for over 100 years with amazing results. In 2023, Ohioans visited their local libraries more than 44.6 million times (the equivalent of 434 sold-out Buckeye football games at Ohio Stadium). Those library visits keep increasing each year.

Why do legislators suddenly want to change everything? Even if they do, there’s still money for libraries, isn’t there?

The House and Senate want control over the funds given to public libraries. Their budget method gives them this control. A state representative told library leaders in Dover, Ohio, “The Legislature is trying to decouple the PLF from current funding models, offer an ‘increase’ this year, and cut funding altogether in two years.”

Will state legislators actually get rid of public library funding?

We don’t know yet if this change marks the end of state funding but it’s clear that some legislators are planning for that goal. If the House and Senate win the budget battle, we know that libraries will immediately be at the mercy of changing political agendas. The current agenda ties funding to censorship rules. If libraries don’t comply, they lose funds.

HOW DO THE 2 PLANS COMPARE?

GOVERNOR’S MODEL PLF as % of Revenue	VS	LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL Budget Line Item
$489,347,998	2024
$530,000,000	2025
Proposed budget begins July 1, 2025
$531,700,000	2026	$490,000,000
$549,100,000	2027	$500,000,000
	2028	When legislators say they want to remove state library funding
	2029

What can we do?

You can continue to advocate for us with your state representatives. We will continue to implore the legislature to keep the PLF as Governor DeWine recommended. We will also keep working hard to give you access to the materials and services we can provide. It may be a very rough road ahead for all of us if state funding disappears, but we will continue to do the best we can with the funds we have.

We're headed out to sea this summer and want you aboard! Sign yourself and everyone in your home up now for our island-hopping summer challenge. You have a challenge board in your hand (on the front page) and we have plenty more at the library for the rest of your crew. The challenge keeps you reading and having fun together all summer with plenty of treasure to earn!

Spend an evening at Treasure Island during our summer kickoff event with Ravenna Parks & Recreation in City Park. We're closing at 4pm that day to get ready for another fantastic evening of free, family fun. Wear your pirate costume for our fashion show (register early), be ready to walk the plank, race seahorses, make crafts, and have oceans of fun with the whole family.

At our summer events, learn about pirates on the Great Lakes and Ravenna's historical ties to Nantucket sea captains. Make crafts reflecting the sand and waves and even explore the high seas through a virtual reality experience. We have plenty of fun planned for your littles, from seafaring storytimes and lagoon adventures to splashy sensory play and more. Climb aboard and set sail. It's time for your adventure at the library to begin!

Parents: Did you know your child could lose up to two months of learning during summer vacation? When kids take a complete break from books, they often return to school having lost ground in critical skills. Children who participate in library reading programs not only maintain their skills—many actually improve over the break while developing a genuine love for reading. Fight this "summer slide" with our summer challenge! It's free, fun, and one of the smartest parenting moves you can make.
