Conditions of Use:

Donor, copyright, other legal restrictions, or physical condition may limit what can be reproduced. The Alexandria Library cannot guarantee the status of requested materials. Purchasers use these materials at their own risk, and must assess their use of provided materials under the United States copyright law (Title 17, United States Code) and other potentially relevant laws such as the Visual Artists Rights Act (Title 17, Section 106A, United States Code) or laws governing oversight of archaeological or scientific records.

It is the user's responsibility to identify the copyright owner and to obtain all necessary clearances before making commercial, broadcast, or other use of this material. It is the user's responsibility to show a good faith effort to identify and contact copyright holders, even in the case of orphan work materials. The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specific conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

Agreement:

The user requesting photocopies, photographs, or electronic files agrees to abide by the above statements and further agrees to indemnify the Alexandria Library and the City of Alexandria in the event they knowingly or unknowingly violate any intellectual or physical property rights of any entities with rights to the requested materials. In purchasing electronic files, I agree to the conditions provided.
